DSE Writing Topics

2012 DSE Q1 (Short Task)

You are a famous news reporter for Hong Kong News. Your old secondary school has asked you to write a feature article about yourself for the next edition of the school magazine.

Use the following headings to write the article: the best part of my job, the biggest challenge I have ever faced in my job, my school days and (add one heading of your own).

2023 DSE Q4

The following topic was discussed at a debate workshop:

Some employers use cameras and computer software to monitor what employees are doing in the workplace. How do you think this affects productivity and job satisfaction?

Write an essay about the pros and cons of monitoring employees in the workplace.

2012 DSE Q2

You have been following an online debate in Health and Fitness eMag about the value of doing virtual sports (such as those played on a Wii) versus real sports. Write your view on the topic and post it on the online forum.

Student's Writing

Being a reporter of Hong Kong news is interesting and meaningful. I think the best part of my job is to understand the people who in need. For example, when I went to disaster to ask the resident there, I will understand how disaster is bad to them. To be empathy and to love the earth.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - ...to understand the people who in need.
  - Correction - ...to understand the needs of the community. (or) ...to understand people who are in need.
  - Reason - The original is missing the verb "are." In professional news writing, we often use the phrase "people in need" or "the marginalized."
- Original Phrase - ...when I went to disaster to ask the resident there
  - Correction - ...when I visit disaster sites to interview local residents
  - Reason - You cannot go to a "disaster" (an event); you go to a "disaster site" or "disaster zone" (the place).
- Original Phrase - I will understand how disaster is bad to them.
  - Correction - I gain a deeper understanding of the devastating impact these events have on their lives.
  - Reason - "Is bad to them" is very informal. Using "devastating impact" describes the pain of the victims much more effectively.

- Original Phrase - To be empathy and to love the earth.
- Correction - My job teaches me to be empathetic and to care for our world.
- Reason - This was a fragment (not a full sentence). "Empathy" is a noun (a thing you have); "Empathetic" is an adjective (a way you are).

Student's Writing

My school days always be happy and cheerful. The most unforgettable is when I share my dream. Everyone encourage me, it make me be hopeful in my future dream. Then I try to find chance to be host or join some choral speaking competition, to talk more.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - My school days always be happy and cheerful.
- Correction - My school days were always happy and filled with joy.
- Reason - You need a past tense verb ("were") because your school days are in the past. Adding "filled with joy" is a more descriptive way to say "cheerful."

- Original Phrase - ...everyone encourage me, it make me be hopeful...
- Correction - ...everyone encouraged me, which gave me hope for my future.
- Reason - Use the past tense "encouraged" and "made." In English, we usually say something "gives us hope" rather than "makes us be hopeful."

- Original Phrase - Then I try to find chance to be host...
- Correction - I began looking for opportunities to host events...

Revised Version

My school days were some of the happiest times of my life. I will never forget when I first shared my dreams; the encouragement I received from everyone gave me great hope. I began seeking out opportunities to host events and joined choral speaking competitions to practice public speaking.

As many of you know, I am Chris Wong, a news reporter for Hong Kong News. I am well-known for my passionate sports news reviews and amusing interviews with celebrities. The best part of my job is that I can attend some world-class sports event around the world like the World Cup and NBA Finals. Moreover, I enjoy to spread happiness to our beloved viewers. By my hilarious and talkative personalities, I often create some memorable experiences such as that time with gold-medal winner Mr. Cheung Ka Long. I remember the most is that I saw a comment said my interviews made his day.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - Moreover, I enjoy to spread happiness...
  - Correction - Moreover, I enjoy spreading happiness...
  - Reason - In English, the verb "enjoy" must always be followed by the -ing form (gerund), never "to."
- Original Phrase - ...amusing interviews with celebrities.
  - Correction - ...engaging interviews with high-profile celebrities.
  - Reason - To sound more natural
- Original Phrase - By my hilarious and talkative personalities, I often create some memorable experiences...
  - Correction - Thanks to my outgoing and humorous nature, I am able to create memorable moments on screen...

- Original Phrase - I remember the most is that I saw a comment said...
- Correction - What I remember most is seeing a comment that said...
- Reason - This sentence was a bit "illegible" because it was missing a subject.
Starting with "What I remember most" makes the sentence complete and clear.

Revised Version

As many of you know, I am Chris Wong, a reporter for Hong Kong News. I am best known for my passionate sports reviews and engaging celebrity interviews. The best part of my job is attending world-class sports events like the World Cup and the NBA Finals. Moreover, I love spreading joy to our viewers. ## Student's Writing

The biggest challenge in my job is that I get embarrassing sometimes in front of the camera. I am always rejected by various of celebrities or athletes. Sometimes they are just too busy to be interviewed. Sometimes there are dead air during interviews. Sometimes random people interrupt the interviews. All you have to do is keeping calm, ignoring the camera and keep the interviews going. Don't afraid to fail since everyone does fails sometimes. The failure just improves me day after day. And eventually become a slightly better reporter.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - ...I get embarrassing sometimes...
- Correction - ...I feel embarrassed sometimes...
- Reason - This is a common "ed/ing" mistake. If you feel the emotion, use "embarrassed." If the situation causes the feeling, the situation is "embarrassing."
- Original Phrase - Sometimes there are dead air during interviews.
- Correction - Sometimes there is dead air during interviews.
- Reason - "Air" is an uncountable noun, so it must use the singular verb "is."

- Original Phrase - Don't afraid to fail since everyone does fails sometimes.
- Correction - Don't be afraid to fail, since everyone fails sometimes.
- Reason - "Afraid" is an adjective, so it needs the verb "be." Also, "does fails" is redundant; simply saying "fails" is stronger.

- Original Phrase - The failure just improve me day after day.
- Correction - These failures help me improve day after day.
- Reason - "Failure" is the subject, so it needs a verb. Also, using "improve me" sounds a bit passive; "help me improve" is more natural.

Revised Version

One of the biggest challenges in my job is dealing with embarrassing moments on camera. I am frequently rejected by a variety of celebrities or athletes who are simply too busy to be interviewed. At other times, I have to deal with 'dead air' or random interruptions from the public. In these moments, the key is to stay calm, ignore the camera and keep the interview moving. Do not be afraid to fail, as everyone fails occasionally. These experiences help me improve day by day and eventually make me a better reporter.

Student's Writing

In my school day life, I was just a shy little boy who was totally different to the present. I was sitting at the corner of the classroom in recess. I always went out to have lunch alone. Until the mid of F4, I was forced to join the campus reporter program due to my excellent writing results. I tried to open my mouth and interview different people in my school and found that it wasn't that hard as I expected. Plus, I met a friendly senior student. He was kind and always teach me interviewing skills and make friends. I soon made many friends and became how to one of the most popular students in the school.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - In my school day life, I was just a shy little boy...
  - Correction - During my school days, I was just a shy boy...
  - Reason - "School day life" is redundant. "During my school days" is the standard way to talk about that period of your life.
- Original Phrase - ...who was totally different to the present.
  - Correction - ...who was completely different from the person I am today.
  - Reason - In English, we usually say something is "different from" something else. Adding "the person I am today" makes the comparison much clearer.

- Original Phrase - I was sitting at the corner of the classroom in recess.
- Correction - I used to sit in the corner of the classroom during recess.
- Reason - "Used to" is the best way to describe a past habit. Also, we say "in the corner" for a room and "during recess" for a time period.

- Original Phrase - ...found that it wasn't that hard as I expected.
- Correction - ...found that it wasn't as hard as I had expected.
- Reason - When making a comparison, use the "as + adjective + as" structure.

Revised Version

During my school days, I was a shy boy and completely different from who I am today. I used to spend my recess sitting alone in the corner of the classroom and always ate lunch by myself. However, in the middle of Form 4, I was encouraged to join the campus reporter program because of my strong writing skills. ## Student's Writing

My moments at school will never be forgotten. In fact they are the best time of my life. I had loads of fun with friends playing soccer and representing the school. I was very focused on my hobbies instead of my future. It was until the last two year of my secondary school that I stopped being childish and foolish. I did research on being a reporter, what skill should I focus on developing and studied hard to get good grade. Without the help and encouragement from my teachers, I wouldn't succeed in my dream. Therefore, I would like to express my appreciation for my teachers in school days.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - It was until the last two year of my secondary school...
- Correction - It wasn't until the last two years of secondary school...
- Reason - We use the negative "wasn't" in this structure to show that the change happened at that specific time. "Years" must be plural because there are two of them.
- Original Phrase - ...what skill should I focus on developing and studied hard to get good grade.
- Correction - ...which skills I should focus on developing, and I studied hard to get good grades.
- Reason - "Which" is more precise here. You also need to repeat the subject "I" to show you are the one who studied. Nouns like "grades" should be plural when speaking generally.

Student's Writing

It is understandable that students want to strive for achievement. Maybe they live up to their parent's expectations, they want to safeguard the prospects of their future or they reckon that it is the symbol of pride. But I must emphasise one thing that you can permit yourself to have failure sometimes. Your academic performance is just a small portion of your life so you can explore your potential in different fields and meet more friends. This can build up a network of your future's work and fructify your life at the same time. On top of this, having a positive mindset is the key to success so having relaxation is also crucial because it supports you to go further appropriately.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase - ...you can permit yourself to have failure sometimes.
  - Correction - ...you can allow yourself to fail sometimes.
  - Reason - While "permit" is grammatically okay, "allow yourself to fail" is the more common and encouraging idiom used when giving advice.
- Original Phrase - This can build up a network of your future's work...
  - Correction - This can build a professional network for your future career...
  - Reason - We usually use the term "professional network" to describe the group of friends and colleagues who can help with work later in life.

- Correction - ...they want to secure their future prospects or they believe that high grades are a badge of honor.

Revised Version

It is completely understandable that students strive for high achievement. Whether they are trying to meet their parents' expectations, secure their future prospects or simply take pride in their work, the pressure is real. However, it is essential to remember that it is okay to allow yourself to fail occasionally. Your academic performance is only one chapter of your life; by exploring different fields and building a diverse social circle, you can expand your professional network and enrich your life. Ultimately, a positive mindset and regular relaxation are the keys to sustainable success.

I hope you are not working while reading this. It has recently been observed that many of you are leaving the office very late, staring at screens full of data and typing ceaselessly — often with a cup of instant noodles on your desk. While your dedication to your job is appreciated, this is not the environment we want for our office, as it has a detrimental effect on both you and the company.

For those who regularly stay late, your health is a major concern. Staying late results in more than just tiredness; it leads to a series of grave physical problems. According to research conducted by the University of Hong Kong's Faculty of Medicine, sleeping late after a long workday increases the risk of cardiovascular disease and liver failure, to name but a few. When you lack sleep, you may struggle to focus the next morning and rely on coffee to stay alert. While caffeine can provide a temporary boost, over-reliance can lead to serious issues like high blood pressure. Please do not let this unhealthy cycle continue; your health should always be the priority.

Apart from impacts towards individuals, leaving the office too late also adversely affect our company as it reduce the productivity. You may ponder - I can finish my tasks as soon as possible, Isn't it a kind of fostering productivity? NO! It's exactly the opposite. Please imagine that, after a day of toilsome work, I'm sure that you will lose the motivation of having meetings, reading documents and typing reports. Without the passion and inspiration not to mention, the productivity leaves much to be desired. At best, you finish your tasks slower; at worst, your work is a mess.

In light of this undesirable scenario, tasks can be reassigned to our staff, reconsidering their daily workload. More often than not, our staff are unable to accomplish all tasks assigned within the official working hour. The reason behind it is not their laziness, but the overwhelming workload. We may re-examine overall circumstance, lighten some departments' workload in the interest of arranging suitable workload for our employees. Hiring more staff may be needed to split the work. Not only can the new arrangement improve the current situation, but also can it lighten staff's psychological burden. Why don't give it a try?

Beyond the impact on individuals, leaving the office too late adversely affects our company by reducing overall productivity. Apart from the working arrangement, our company should also change the "OT" Policy, referring that employees have to accomplish most of the tasks assigned that day before leaving the office. Most of our staff reveal that the recent policy is too strict, forcing them left behind for working. Will it be better if the deadline of tasks assigned will be longer? On one hand, staffs don't have to stay behind until late night. On the other hand, they will be less stressed and check every details, submitting work with better quality. Isn't it killing two birds with one stone? It is sincerely hoped that our company can consider these suggestions.

Clarity and Grammar Corrections

- Original Phrase: ...referring that employees have to accomplish...
- Correction: ...which states that employees must accomplish...

- Original Phrase: ...forcing them left behind for working.
- Correction: ...forcing them to stay late to work.

- Original Phrase: Will it be better if the deadline of tasks assigned will be longer?
- Correction: Would it be better if deadlines for assigned tasks were extended?
- Reason: We use "Would it be..." to suggest an idea. We also "extend" a deadline rather than making it "longer". Pay attention to the verb tenses here (conditional!)

- Original Phrase: ...staffs don't have to stay behind...
- Correction: ...staff members don't have to stay late...
- Reason: "Staff" is a collective noun and is almost never pluralized as "staffs." Use "staff" or "staff members."

- Original Phrase: ...they will be less stressed and check every details...

Revised Version

In addition to revising working arrangements, the company should also reconsider our current 'OT' policy, which stipulates that employees must accomplish most of their daily tasks before leaving. Many staff members find this policy too strict, as it forces them to stay late every evening. Would it not be more effective to extend the deadlines for assigned tasks? On one hand, staff would not have to stay until late at night. On the other hand, they would be less stressed and could attend to every detail, resulting in higher-quality work. This approach truly kills two birds with one stone. It is sincerely hoped that the company will consider these suggestions.

Homeschooling

- Definition:
A pedagogical approach where parents or guardians assume the responsibility of teaching their children at home, rather than sending them to a traditional public or private school
- Advantages:
  - Customized Learning: Tailors lessons to a child's pace, interests and learning style
  - Flexible Schedule: Allows for flexible learning schedule, facilitating experiential learning opportunities such as travel, extracurriculars or community engagement
  - Safe Environment: Minimizes exposure to bullying, peer pressure or school-related stress
- Disadvantages:
  - Resource Constraints: May lack access to specialized pedagogical tools, laboratory facilities, extracurricular infrastructure (e.g. gymnasiums) or specialized teachers available in institutional settings
  - Limited Socialization: Homeschooled children may miss out on the regular social interactions and peer relationships fostered in traditional school settings, which can impede social development

Exams Vs Projects

- Advantages of Exams:
  - Standardized Evaluation: Exams offer a uniform way to measure student performance, making it easier to compare results across individuals or even different classes
  - Time-Efficient: They require less time to administer and grade, especially in large classrooms
  - Reduced Bias: Exams, particularly those with clear grading rubrics, can minimize subjective bias in evaluation
  - Immediate Feedback
- Disadvantages of Exams:
  - Surface Learning: Encourage rote memorization rather than deep understanding and application of knowledge
  - Limited Assessment of Real-World Skills: May not adequately assess skills like creativity, teamwork, time management or problem-solving, which are often assessed through projects

- Advantages of Projects:
  - Develop Practical Skills: Provide opportunities to apply theoretical knowledge and build practical skills relevant to future careers
  - Promote Deeper Understanding: Projects often require students to research, analyze and synthesize information, leading to a more profound and lasting understanding of the subject matter

- Disadvantages of Projects:
  - Time-Consuming to Grade: Often involve written components and require more in-depth evaluation than multiple-choice exams, resulting in longer grading periods and delayed feedback for students
  - Potential for Unequal Group Work: Group projects can be challenging if the workload is not distributed evenly, potentially leading to resentment and unfairness among group members
  - Academic Dishonesty: Projects, especially group projects, can be more vulnerable to academic dishonesty, such as plagiarism or one student doing the majority of the work

Trends

- The "Social Lubricant" Effect
  - DSE Quote: For introverted individuals or those with social anxiety, digital platforms act as a "social lubricant", lowering the barriers to interaction by allowing for "asynchronous communication" (responding at one's own pace).
- Peer Support Networks / Digital Empathy
  - Online forums and groups (e.g. on Reddit or Facebook Groups) that allow individuals with shared challenges — such as chronic illnesses or mental health struggles — to find "virtual sanctuaries".
  - DSE Quote: For many struggling with stigmatized conditions, social media provides a virtual sanctuary where anonymity helps alleviate the fear of judgment, allowing for genuine peer-to-peer support.
- Niche Community Formation
  - Platforms like Discord and X allow for the democratization of interest-based groups, enabling people to connect over specific hobbies (e.g. coding, indie gaming) regardless of their physical proximity.
- Real-time Civic Engagement
  - Social media facilitates "active citizenship", where youth can organize community service or raise awareness for social causes (e.g. beach clean-ups) through viral "calls-to-action".
- The "Key Opinion Leader" (KOL) Economy
  - The shift from traditional celebrity endorsements to "relatable" social media influencers who drive consumer behavior through platforms like Instagram and Little Red Book.
